Youth and a Trade

Industry should co-operate with the school to give young practical vocational training, says this writer

By J. M. PIGOTT

THE PROBLEM of youth in the field of industry is not new, and it is not likely to be solved in the near future. For the first generation, the young people are not going to be trained in the same way as the previous generation. The young people are not going to be trained in the same way as the previous generation. The young people are not going to be trained in the same way as the previous generation.

It is not likely that youth will be trained in the same way as the previous generation. The young people are not going to be trained in the same way as the previous generation. 50,000 Watts

A behind-the-scenes glimpse of a modern broadcasting station

1. Sounds that come from the studio microphone are "mixed" by the sound booth operator to produce a balanced reproduction. All phones on this page were taken at CBL, Toronto and Murray, one of Canada's four 50,000 watt radio stations.
2. Station maintenance, where the broadcast is amplified and mixed, is the heart of the transmitter. To get on the air, it is by now in the station. More than 7,000 miles of broadcast wire is needed to hook up CBL's national network.
3. The transmitter station is protected by locked doors, fireproof, steel doors and concrete walls. The station is a 10,000 sq ft building. The station is a 10,000 sq ft building.
4. Operating desk, a battery of radio tubes which change information current into the direct current used in broadcasting.
5. Wind light meters in a control room. These meters are used to control the station's output.
6. One of three tubes, each 50,000 watts, which power the station's output. The tubes are 10,000 sq ft in size.
7. Water is forced through a metal jacket of 80 pounds pressure to the tubes to keep the tubes from overheating. The tubes are 10,000 sq ft in size.
